Reviews

Marta: This thing is fantastic! It's got a timer, so you won't fry your hair by letting the iron get too hot on your hair. Previous curling irons I've had couldn't make the same claim....

Wendy: Even on my very fine, wispy hair, this held the curls in. Amazing.

Miki: This was not for me. The automatic rotator grasps your hair too tight and the iron just stays there. I couldn't get it out of my hair easily.

Bobcats are meat-eating wildcats that are quite common in North America. However, despite their large population numbers, they are rarely seen by humans, perhaps because they are nocturnal. These elusive animals are approximately twice the size of domestic house cats. Their furry coats are usually brown or a brownish red color. Bobcats are extremely powerful hunters, and are capable of capturing prey much larger than themselves. They sneak up on prey and jump on their victims at the last minute, with leaps of up to 3 meters. Bobcats are solitary animals. Unlike dogs or wolves, who travel in packs, bobcats travel and hunt alone.

Summary:

Bobcats are ____ [A] ____, undomesticated cats that are populous in North America. They do not often get spotted by people. Most bobcats have brown or brownish fur. They are good at hunting and can catch prey that are bigger than their body size. They ____ [B] ____ approach their prey. They also travel alone.

[1] The famous Sistine Chapel, in the Vatican, Italy, was built in 1481. It was immediately filled with beautiful artwork by master artists. By 1512, the Michelangelo had painted the famous ceiling. In 1541, the last artwork by the artist Rafael was finished. These precious artworks lasted centuries. However, by the 1980s, a problem was clear. The artworks had probably lost a lot of their original colors. The decision was made to clean and restore the art.

[2] This was extremely controversial. Supporters of the restoration noted that there were centuries of water damage to the ceiling. The water damage had created cracks. The cracks had let salt through, which had whitened the paintings. However, art historians noted that the restoration may have altered the paintings significantly from their original state. It is not always clear what techniques a master painter like Michelangelo was using. Modern restorers must make guesses about the intention of the original artists. Critics of the decision to restore the paintings worried that some of those guesses were wrong.

[3] In short, art restoration in general is often controversial. However, when it comes to paintings as important as those in the Sistine Chapel, the controversies have been endless.

32. Which of the following would be the best title for the passage?

- (A) the decision to restore the art
- (B) the mistakes made by Michelangelo
- (C) the company hired to work on the art
- (D) the cost to fix the art in the Sistine Chapel

35. According to the passage, what is most likely true about restoring the Sistine Chapel?

- (A) It is overly expensive.
- (B) It has all been finished.
- (C) It will always be controversial.
- (D) It is what the original artist wants.

Look in the lunchbox of an innocent school child and you may find within it a sandwich. Yet sandwiches themselves may not have such innocent origins. Named after John Montagu, the 4th Earl of Sandwich, one story about the sandwich is that it got its start due to gambling. As legend has it, Lord Sandwich was constantly at the card table. An addicted gambler, he would play night and day without taking a break to eat. He was looking for a way to eat meat without getting his hands dirty while he was playing cards. The solution his servants came up with was two pieces of toasted bread with salted beef in the middle.

Summary:

The sandwich may have been invented due to the gambling problem of the Earl of Sandwich. Lord Sandwich played cards for long hours with no [A] breaks. He wanted to be able to eat without [B] the game. The solution was to put beef in between slices of bread.

[1] Jaguars are large cats found in the Americas, from the Southern United States, to Mexico, Central America, and South America. The third largest species of cat after lions and tigers, jaguars range in length from 90 to 190 centimeters and in weight from 28 to 90 kilograms. These large felines roam the dense tropical rainforests and grasslands that comprise their main habitat.

[2] Jaguars behave much like tigers, but most closely resemble African leopards due to their spots. Jaguars are larger, however, and their spots differ from those of a leopard. While leopards have spots shaped like rings, the spots on jaguars are filled with dots in the middle.

[3] Skilled hunters, jaguars possess a bite more powerful than a lion's. The bite of a jaguar is so strong, in fact, that it can crush the prey's skull. A jaguar's prey includes any kind of animal found in its habitat. Because jaguars are powerful swimmers, they can hunt anything in the rivers of their habitat, from fish to turtles, and even a type of small alligators called caimans. And on land, their prey includes everything from tiny mice to large domestic cows and deer.
